

Tuberculosis

Highlights:

- In 2022, development assistance for tuberculosis reached a high of $2.6 billion, similar to levels last seen in 2017.
- Development assistance for tuberculosis was concentrated primarily among countries in Southern and Central sub-Saharan Africa and Central and East Asia.
- The US government was the largest source of development assistance for tuberculosis.

Development assistance for tuberculosis dropped by 3.3% between 2017 and 2021, but rose again in 2022 to $2.6 billion, remaining relatively steady in 2023.

Figure A Development assistance for health for tuberculosis, 1990–2023

Values are in 2022 USD.

Global Fund = The Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria

NGOs = Non-governmental organizations

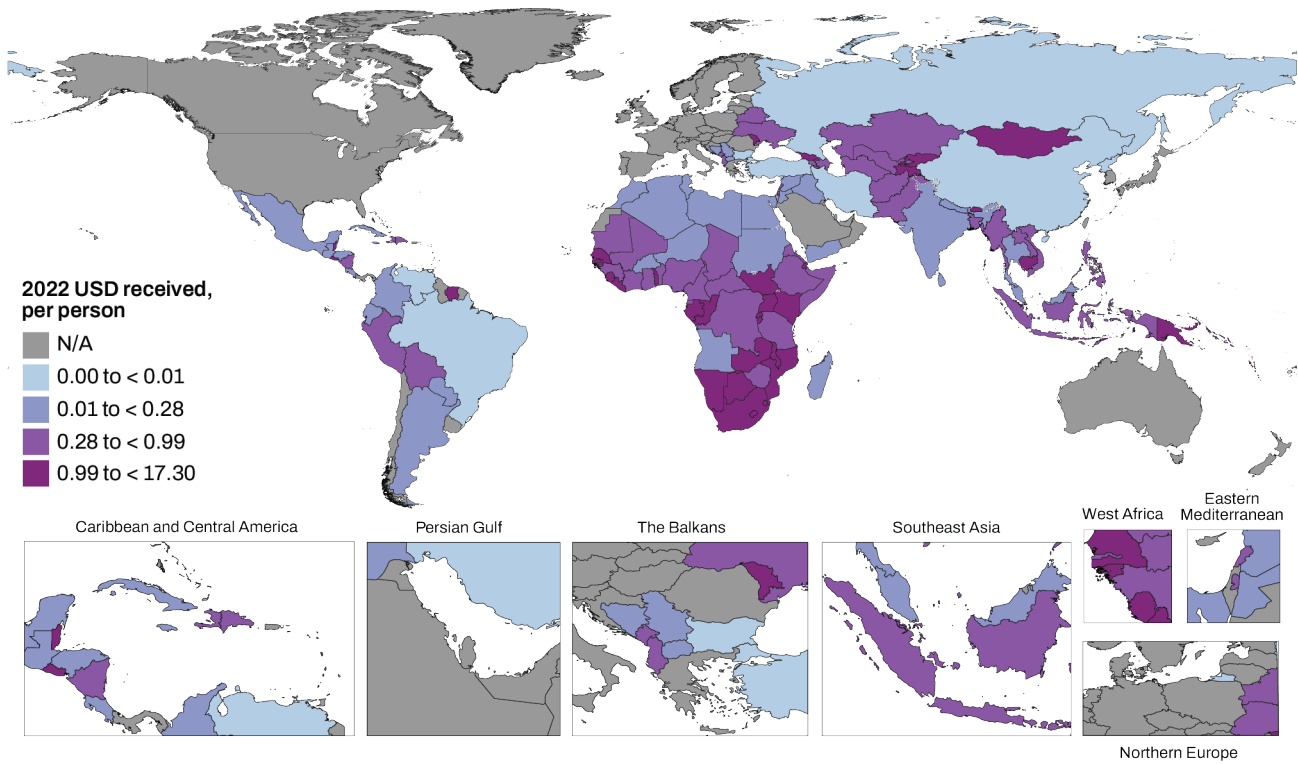

Other UN Agencies = PAHO, UNFPA, UNICEF, Unitaid, and UNAIDS.

WHO = World Health Organization

Regional development banks include the African Development Bank, the Asian Development Bank, and the Inter-American Development Bank.

São Tomé and Príncipe, Dominica, and Lesotho received the largest amounts of development assistance for tuberculosis per person in 2022.

Figure B Development assistance for health received per person for tuberculosis, 2022

Most development assistance for tuberculosis flowed through the Global Fund.

Figure C Flows of development assistance for health for tuberculosis, 2023

